BRITTANY KINSER

Brittany Kinser has dedicated her professional life to teaching and education leadership, currently serving as the CEO of Kinser Consulting, LLC. After teaching in both Chicago and Japan, she helped launch the IIT Math and Science Academy in Chicago, where she developed innovative curricula that emphasized STEM education. In 2012, Brittany joined Rocketship Public Schools as an Assistant Principal in California before relocating to Milwaukee, where she served as the Founding Principal of the network's first school outside of California and later as Executive Director of Rocketship's Milwaukee region, overseeing the growth of a regional network of schools.

Most recently, she held the position of CEO and President of City Forward Collective and CFC Action Fund in Milwaukee, where she played a pivotal role in securing over $250 million in new funding for local schools. Brittany has also served as President of the Milwaukee Charter School Advocates, mobilizing parents and advocating for equitable funding and resources for charter schools.

In addition to her leadership roles, Brittany is a co-founder of Wisconsin Reads, an initiative focused on addressing the literacy crisis in Milwaukee's elementary schools through a two-pronged approach of leadership development and high-dosage 1:1 tutoring. She is committed to fostering high-quality educational opportunities for all students.

Brittany holds a master's degree in Educational Leadership from Columbia University Teachers College, a master's degree in Designing Science Curriculum from the Illinois Institute of Technology, and a bachelor's degree in Special Education from Eastern Illinois University. Her passion for improving educational outcomes drives her ongoing commitment to supporting students, teachers, and schools.
